

June 31, 2023

Its good that you asked me to write something because for the past few days I also wanted to write down what I was feeling but I never got around it so I think this is best time to do it. You said after going to college you realized how much you love me, honestly speaking I truly realized just how much more I love you because of these few days that we are not talking. I truly realized the impact you have in my life and most importantly in my day-to-day activities. We have not talked properly for 3 days and trust me I have never felt lonelier in my life. I feel like if you are not there and not messaging me every alternate hour about one thing or the other then my life has no meaning. For the past three days I have been checking my phone every 10 minutes hoping to see a text from you its like I am sitting with my family and I am constantly looking at my phone and back just manifesting to receive a text from you. I am telling you all this so that you understand just how much I am missing you baby. Over these past months you have become my life baby, without you around everything feels so bleak so monotonous. I can't survive one day without seeing you or hearing your voice my love. I miss you I miss you a lot. I want to see you laugh again baby it's the most beautiful phenomenon I have ever witnessed. When you smile na your eyes starts shinning and your cheeks curve so gracefully that I could keep looking at them until my last breath. I know I am madly in love with you and I am literally obsessed with every thing associated to you but trust me when I say I have only ever been happy in my whole life when I was with you, it was like someone has casted a spell and suddenly everything started feeling lovely and cheerful or maybe it was not a spell but your beauty. I am in awe with you baby, in awe of your beauty and your voice. I know I call you beautiful and Gorgeous a lot but trust me your beauty is mesmerizing and breathtaking to say the least. Your face glows with so much radiance that I honestly feel it outshines even the brightest of stars. I used to wonder why I feel like time stops when I am with you but ig I know why, its because you are so mesmerizing that no wonder time itself stops to admire your beauty. I feel nothing less that blessed as I got a chance to see and admire your charm, your elegance and your grace. I just want to keep on writing but I will stop here as you have to wake up early tomorrow but I will complete this my love. I love you sweetheart (this time I wont say more because there is literary nothing in this universe with which you can compare my love)...