

An attempt to show how much I love you

Yesterday night I didn't sleep much, I was lying on my bed thinking how I can show my love for you, what can I do to make you feel more loved and now that you asked me to write a letter, I will try to express my love through this. You know whenever I am alone at night, like after 3 (because these days I don't sleep before 4.30) I just keep thinking about those 5 days we spent together and how it changed my life and me completely. I knew you were beautiful, I knew your eyes were mesmerizing, I knew your smile will melt even the toughest of men and I also knew the moment I laid my eyes on you in real life I will be hooked for eternity. I know I have described that exact moment many times before but I want to do it again because I can never get enough of it, sometimes that exact moment starts playing like some movie in front of my eyes and sometimes not being able to look at you in real-life hurts like some physical pain, Video calls help but being together is really a different experience.

So let's go back to that moment, my mind was so full of thoughts right before turning into your street that I was not able to drive properly, I was feeling excited, nervous, shitting myself, amazed, doubtful that is this really happening combined with thousand more emotions simultaneously. But the moment I turned into your street the world stopped for me It really did baby, somehow all these thoughts and emotions merged into a single thought saying 'Where is she?' and so my eyes started searching for you, looking left and right even though I knew your house was towards the end of that street. See now here is the fun part I always wanted to be the first one to look at you but that clearly didn't happen because the moment I laid my eyes on a small figure in a distant wearing a tangerine kurti, typing on her phone while looking in my direction, I knew you saw me first and goddamn that raised my heartbeat because you know first impression is everything. You saw me coming and then you started typing something on your phone and that moment was so wholesome baby because I literally slowed down to cherish that moment as it was the first time, I was seeing you in real life after ages. It's funny how I forgot how to apply brakes, it's funny how I forgot that I will have to say something when I will stop in front of you and its funny how nothing mattered to me at that moment, I just wanted to keep looking at you. Right before

I stopped in front of you, I was thinking what would I say when I stop, just a simple "Hiii" or maybe something like "Helloo there I am sorry I didn't bring flowers", but when I stopped, I didn't say anything, nothing at all, not because I was nervous but because my mind didn't allow me to speak because I just wanted to look at you. Its crazy right the first thing we said to each other was "I am shivering" and "aree you are actually shivering please calm down", I will never forget that moment all nervousness, all doubt everything evaporated the moment I held your hands. Baby It took all my will power not to kiss your hand right then and there, it will be an understatement if I said they were the most gentle and delicate hands I ever touched. I still live in that moment because before that point in time I never knew even I can also get lost in someone's eyes, even I can also look at someone and think they deserve all the happiness there is. We had discussed before about the scenario of what will I do if you cheated and I remember saying I will leave, I said that before meeting you, but baby the moment I saw you in real life even from a distant, I knew I could never leave you whatever happens and that thought was terrifying and heartwarming at the same time.

You are not just beautiful Samriddhi because they are many people in the world who are beautiful, you are beauty itself in living, breathing form. The perfection in your face is so astonishing that even after constantly looking at you every time we met, I always ended up feeling that how can someone be so perfect. I love your eyes the most but I love your eyebrows, your nose, your lips, your cheeks, your ears, your jaw and your neck just the same. Baby before meeting you I never understood why couples were cringe and called each other with cringe names and were so open in public, but I know because I am one of them and I understand their behavior too because when I am with you it's like only you exist, my world revolves around you and only you, everyone else becomes secondary. Baby I never ever expected to find such a wonderful and amazing person in this world, someone who is beautiful, lovely, caring and funny, but here you are. You have made my life better in every way possible and I cannot imagine my life without you. I will always be here for you, whatever happens, and I will always love you more than anything in this world. You are always going to be my biggest priority baby because I always want to see you happy...I love you <3